

Ted J. Kelly

Area 4 Director

Senior Project Manager of Regulatory Services,

Burns & McDonnell (Ret)

Ted Kelly served as senior project manager of regulatory services at Burns & McDonnell where he managed and executed rate studies and regulatory services for utilities. Ted retired from Burns & McDonnell in 2019 after 21 years with the company. He served as department head for a number of years and was also a marketing director for the business consulting group for several years. His project experience included analysis of utility operations and management; strategic planning; cost-benefit analysis; financial feasibility; revenue requirements; cost of service; rate design; and valuations of utility property. His work included presentation of testimony before state regulatory commissions and technical presentations and workshops at state and national utility industry meetings.

Before joining Burns & McDonnell, Ted worked for Black & Veatch. He served as a project manager providing consulting services to utilities specializing in electric and gas projects.

Ted graduated from Missouri S&T in 1977 with a bachelor's degree in economics and a minor in engineering management. In 1983 Ted completed his masters of business administration in utility regulation and management at Indiana University. While at Indiana University, Ted worked as a career counselor for undergraduate students in the school of business.

Ted continues to support Missouri S&T. He is currently the Chair of the Dean's Leadership Council for the College of Arts, Science and Business and is a Board Member for the Miner Alumni Association. He also serves as an alumni ambassador and is regularly involved with alumni events in the Kansas City area.

Ted has been married to his lovely wife Carol since 1982. He and Carol have two children; a daughter who is a professor at Rutgers and a son, also a Missouri S&T graduate, who is a computer engineer in Silicon Valley.
